The University of Medical Sciences (UNIMED), Ondo has installed an Observatory at its Odosida Campus. The Observatory is first of its kind in Ondo State.

The installation was made possible with the efforts of Mr Jenrola Akintomide of the Department of Physics with Electronics of the University who won two sets of research equipment from IQAir Foundation, USA.

Prior to the installation of this equipment at UNIMED, air quality monitoring stations (observatories) were only available at research locations in Lagos, Abuja, and Edo states in Nigeria. The air monitoring research equipment was installed on the 12th August, 2024.

With this landmark achievement, the University now has an integrated air quality monitoring station and a weather monitoring station in one system (or observatory). The equipment already generates real-time data on physical phenomena at ground level in the Ondo community.

Additionally, the equipment uploads and displays the air quality index, particulate matter in the air, weather types (rainy, sunny, and cloudy), meteorological parameters (temperature, humidity, pressure, wind speed, etc.), and their forecasting for 7 days with high precision.

According to Mr Akintomide " everyone can freely see the output of this equipment from any remote location in the world with internet access". He further said "that top-killer or respiratory diseases worldwide are traced to toxic substances in the polluted air. To this end, the ongoing air quality monitoring is geared towards fulfilling the university's mandate of impacting the community through its research in public health and sciences.

UNIMED, Ondo Conducts 2024/25 Post-UTME

The University of Medical Sciences (UNIMED), Ondo conducted the 2024/25 Post-UTME for candidates who chose the institution as their most preferred institution and those who intend to change to the University between Tuesday, 3rd September and Thursday, 5th September, 2024 at its Odosida campus.

The examination, which attracted candidates from across the six geopolitical zones of the country, was orderly and conducted in line with the global best practices. The Deans of the various Faculties of the University used the opportunity of the examination to explain the career prospects of courses on offer at UNIMED to both the prospective students and their parents.

Prior to the enlightenment of both the candidates and their parents on career prospects, the Deputy Vice-Chancellor Academics, Professor Roseangela Nwuba admonished the parents not to be fixated on a particular course of study, as no course is superior to the other. In her words "Let me advise the parents present here that there is no course that is superior to the other. Whatever is the choice of your ward, please let us encourage them to be their best in it. Choosing or imposing a course on our children can make them struggle in life".

The Vice-Chancellor appreciated everyone who drove the process " I am thankful to everyone who ensured the success of the Post-UTME. I must specially commend the outstanding leadership of the process by the DVC (Academic), Professor Roseangela Nwuba and the remarkable support by our highly dedicated Deans of Faculties".

He further showered encomiums on the excellent ICT team led by the Director of ICT, Dr. (Cannon) Ebenezer Olajuyigbe, the Registry team, the Directorate of Student Affairs under the leadership of Dr Sunday Ololade, the Academic Affairs team, the Admission Officer, Ms Funbi Ladapo, the Academic Planning team, the PR and the Media team, the security team under the leadership of the Chief Security Officer, CSP Olusegun Owoeye (Rtd.), the SUG led by its President, Mr Victor Abiodun, various student fellowships and a host of others. "Without you all, this exercise would not have been successful as it was. Well done!" He concluded.

The Post-UTME had close to 2000 candidates in attendance

TESTIMONIALS OF PARENTS ON UNIMED CONDUCT OF 2024/2025 POST-UTME

Dr Adesegun Adetola (Oyo State)

My experience during the UNIMED Post UTME examination for my child was nostalgic. With over 15 years of experience in a university environment, I haven't seen such a high level of decorum, discipline, and precise organization as was manifested during the exercise. The orientation exercise, which provided information about the institution, its wide variety of courses, and other academic activities, was top-notch and well-packaged. The saying 'first impression lasts' really worked out in my case. My son became convinced about settling for the institution even before writing his Post UTME exams. So, if he's fortunate enough to cross the hurdle and be considered for admission, I think it would be a dream come true for him. In summary, the Post UTME examination experience was an impactful one for both of us.

Mr Adeoye Timothy (Ondo State)

I came all the way from Akure with my son. I'm so impressed with the way the school handled everything, the facilitators are quite good.

Mrs Eniola Akinleyin (Lagos State)

I'm from Lagos. Since I have been here, I have gone through the school portal and I can say they have quality facilities. My daughter picked Anatomy as her first choice course, and the school fee is affordable.

Mrs Bamidele (Kwara State)

I'm from Kwara State. I enjoyed the enlightenment about the university. We know they have better plan for our children. I hope they will give our daughter admission so as to enjoy all the facilities we were informed about.

J. D. OLANIYAN ESQ., Legal Practitioner, Ibadan.

The quest for qualitative education with sound training for my wards has taken me round some universities in Nigeria particularly for the purpose of taking them to such institutions for Post UTME. In most of these universities the experiences left much to be desired. Now to the University of Medical Sciences (UNIMED) Ondo State ...

we arrived the venue at around 10 O'clock on the fateful day so as not to be caught in the usual web. Alas, the situation was quite different and impressive as we got to the venue, we were greeted by neatly dressed and polite security men who smilingly directed us to the well-arranged garden-like car park and as we alighted, we were warmly welcomed by students of the various campus fellowships who first gave my daughter pre-examination orientation and reassured her of success. While still wondering if we were still on a Nigerian university campus or elsewhere, a gentle man with a university tag ushered my daughter into a big hall.

On getting there, I saw a big screen displaying various previous activities of the university, profile of the university's laudable developments so far. In short, the documentary of the university, an insightful orientation was given by both the principal officers of the university and some of the students.

Remarkable of the various presentations was the speech of a young lady, an Ukrainian returnee who continues her medical training in the university after her return to Nigeria in 2022 due to the Ukraine Russia conflict. Honestly, information is power!. I did not know that what we were looking for in Europe, thousands of miles away with our life fortune was here with us in Nigeria. If I had had this knowledge, my son would not have returned to Europe particularly in the face of the dwindling fortune of the Naira in the FX market.

It is incredible that a young university of less than a decade has recorded such a lofty development and attainment.

UNIMED will be a force to acknowledge and reckon with in the training of medical professionals in the next two years - Professor Oluseyi Adejumo, Dean Faculty of Clinical Sciences

Introduction

Professor Oluseyi Adejumo is one of the pioneer staff of the University, a distinguished Academic Administrator who has headed many departments in virtually three Faculties, and has served as a Vice Dean and Deputy Director.

This erudite scholar who is the first "home grown" Professor and the current Dean, Faculty of Clinical Sciences takes us through what makes the Faculty unique, its contributions to the growth of the University, what to expect in the next two years and requirements to be a successful scholar. It's a compelling read.

The Faculty of Clinical Sciences is one of the critical faculties at UNIMED, can you take us through the courses offered in the faculty and their career prospects?

The Faculty of Clinical Sciences is primarily involved in the coordination of training of medical students to become doctors. There are various departments in the Faculty. We have the Departments of Community Medicine, Internal Medicine, Obstetrics and Gynaecology, Paediatrics, Mental Health, Radiology and Surgery. We work closely with Faculties of Sciences, Basic Medical Sciences and Basic Clinical Sciences in the training of medical students. The Faculty provides the platform for the students to appreciate how diseases are prevented; how diseases manifest in individuals and how they are managed.

What do you consider as the unique selling proposition (USP) of your Faculty and how has it impacted on the growth of the University?

Being a specialised medical University, our Faculty has impacted significantly on the growth of our dear University. Prior to the establishment of UNIMED, Ondo State had no tertiary institution for training medical students and thus, the establishment of our Faculty was a significant milestone not only for the University but the entire state! The Faculty has also been blessed with staff who are highly committed and dedicated to the training of medical students. This has enhanced the smooth running of our program without the usual interruptions in most tertiary institutions on Nigeria and the timely accreditation of our program by both NUC and the Medical and Dental Council of Nigeria. The unusual commitment of our staff also culminated in the graduation of our first set of medical doctors in record time.

The Faculty has also leveraged on the hospital facilities and personnel in both Ondo and Akure to facilitate adequate and comprehensive training of our students. By God's grace, we are presently set to graduate our 3rd set of medical doctors despite the COVID-19 pandemic in about 9 years of commencement of academic activities.

As a pioneer staff, the first fully 'home grown' professor and current Dean of the Faculty, where do you see the Faculty in the next two years and what are your immediate plans to take the Faculty to the next level?

I see our Faculty becoming more highly sought after for the training of medical students in Nigeria. Our medical doctors will distinguish themselves excellently in institutions where they will be employed and UNIMED will be a force to acknowledge and reckon with in the training of medical professionals.

I research collaboration with other Faculties within and outside the University to win grants. We will also be involved in rolling out new and impactful programs in collaboration with other Institutes in the University.

Over the next couple of years, the Faculty will be strengthening ourThe Faculty also intends to enhance the town-gown relationship by organising workshop and training programs including training of teachers and students across Ondo State in Basic Life Support, training of first responders (Police officers, FRSC officials and NURTW members) in cases of emergencies and accidents. The Faculty will leverage on our well equipped simulation laboratory and our seasoned critical care experts to achieve the training objectives.

We are aware that you are a multiple award winner and remarkable scholar, can you tell us about some of your awards and what a scholar needs to be successful?

Firstly, I want to appreciate God for the remarkable achievements in my career over the years. I had the privilege of graduating from my first degree as the recipient of prizes for the best graduating student in Community Medicine and Surgery. In the course of my Residency program, I also received the prize for the best Part 1 candidate in Internal Medicine exam organized by National Post graduate Medial College in 2011.

I have also won the UNIMED Vice-Chancellor's Prize twice for the outstanding staff of the year award and as the academic staff with the highest number of publications uploaded on the University's OER portal. I have been privileged to be part of the academic staff that won the University Institutional Based Research TetFund grant in 2021 and the University Grant Award in 2023. Mentorship, collaboration, dedication, commitment, hard work and the grace of God are crucial for a successful scholarly career.
