Background

"Librarians are tour-guides for all of knowledge. Librarians have always been among the most thoughtful and helpful people. They are teachers without a classroom. No libraries, no progress." The words of Patrick Ness (American Author and Journalist) and Willard Scott (American Weather Presenter) came to life in our one-on-one with the Librarian of UNIMED. In this engaging interview, Dr Oduwole, the 1st Substantive Librarian of UNIMED, demonstrates his versatility as a vastly experienced professional with in-depth understanding of how library is critical to the success of any university. Like a tour guide, he takes us through his plans and vision for the UNIMED library, his immediate actions and what to expect in the next five years. This is an interview you cannot afford not to read!

Within the space of two weeks of your assumption of office as the 1st Substantive Librarian of the University of Medical Sciences, Ondo, we are aware you have introduced several new initiatives to overhaul the university's library. Can you share your vision and these initiatives with us?

Since assuming the role of the 1st Substantive Librarian of the University of Medical Sciences, Ondo, my vision has been centred around transforming our library into a modern, dynamic, and accessible resource hub that supports the academic and research needs of our university community. My goal is to ensure that the library is not only a place to access information but also a vibrant space for learning, collaboration, and innovation.

To achieve this, I have introduced several initiatives:

- Digital Transformation: We are in the process of uploading our books collection to the web on the KOHA integrated Library System as well as add other online resources such as Taylor and Francis as well as Research4Life databases. Thus, allowing students and staff to access a wide range of resources online, anywhere and anytime. The University community will enjoy access to the digital resources very soon

- Resource Expansion: We are actively acquiring new books, journals, and digital databases that align with the university's academic programmes and research focus areas. We have recently acquired an eBooks platform where we have over 5000 records covering ALL the programmes being offered in the university.

- User-Centred Services: We have revamped our services to be more user-friendly, there is also plan to extend library opening hours, personalized research assistance, and improved interlibrary loan services.

- Library Staff Training: Continuous professional development for our library staff to ensure they are equipped to support the evolving needs of our users. As a matter of fact, we have 2 staff of the Federal University of Medical Sciences, Ila - Orangun, with us on a two day training, to understudy how we harness our resources.

The University will be starting new academic programmes such as Doctor of Pharmacy, Speech Language Therapy, among others in October, and access to globally relevant resource materials will be key to the success of the programmes. What is the state of our library and how readily prepared is the University in terms of books for these new programmes?

The University of Medical Sciences is poised to commence new academic programmes in fields such as Doctor of Pharmacy and Speech Language Therapy. In anticipation of this, the library has been diligently working to ensure that the necessary resources are in place. We have, among others, been able to put in place:

- Acquisition of Specialised Resources: Identified and started acquiring essential textbooks, reference materials, and journals specific to these new disciplines.

- Subscription to Relevant Databases:

Secured subscriptions to databases and e-resources that offer up-to-date and globally relevant information in these fields. As mentioned earlier, we have access to research 4 Life and Taylor and Francis databases respectively which I was able to use my network for the University to have access to. Also, let me add that we have access to EBSCO host from the NUC. All these resources will improve learning, research and teaching in the University.

- Collaboration with Faculties:

Worked closely with the academic departments to ensure that the library's collection aligns with the curriculum and research needs of these programmes.

You have shared your vision and the immediate initiatives introduced with us, where do you see the UNIMED library in the next 5 years?

In the next five years, I envision the UNIMED Library becoming a leading academic library in Nigeria, renowned for its comprehensive collection, innovative services, and user-centred approach. We aim to:

- Achieve Full Digital Integration:

Complete the automation of our collection, offering seamless access to resources for our global community of scholars.

- Become a Research Powerhouse:

Establish specialised research support services, including data management, research consultations, and workshops, to empower our faculty and students in their research endeavours.

Enhance Global Collaboration:

Build partnerships with other academic libraries and institutions worldwide to exchange resources, ideas, and best practices.

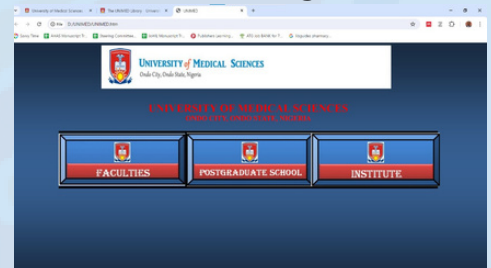

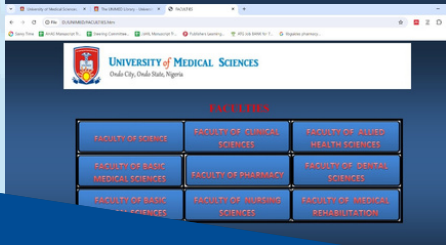

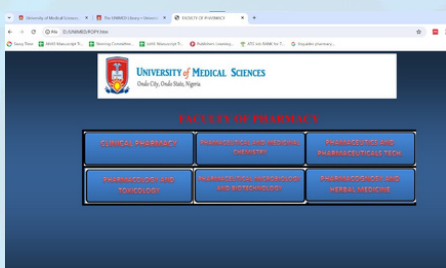

- Foster Lifelong Learning:

Expand our outreach to include alumni and the broader community, making the library a hub for lifelong learning and professional development.

- Sustainable Growth:

Continuously upgrade our infrastructure and technology, ensuring that our library remains a state-of-the-art facility that adapts to the evolving needs of the university and its stakeholders.

By focusing on these areas, the UNIMED Library will not only support the immediate academic and research needs of our university but also contribute to the broader mission of advancing medical education and healthcare in Nigeria.

UNIMED RECORDS A HISTORIC FIRST IN EXERCISE AND SPORTS SCIENCE POSTGRADUATE STUDIES IN NIGERIA

The University of Medical Sciences, Ondo, marked a significant milestone in Nigeria's academic landscape with the defense of dissertations by the first set of Postgraduate Diploma (PGD) students in Exercise and Sports Science on Friday, 16th August 2024. These postgraduate students are the first indigenously trained in Nigeria to graduate with this unique course combination, heralding a new era in advanced sports and exercise education in the country.

Exercise and Sports Science is an interdisciplinary field that bridges the gap between theory and practice in physical health, fitness and athletic performance. The discipline combines elements of physiology, biomechanics, psychology, nutrition and sports medicine to study how physical activity influences human health and performance.

Students in this field are trained to apply scientific principles to enhance physical function, prevent injuries, and improve overall health and athletic performance. This pioneering programme at the University of Medical Sciences, Ondo, represents a significant step forward in building a robust academic and professional community dedicated to advancing exercise and sports science in Nigeria.
